Curriculum Intent

The intent of Pulford School's Art and Design curriculum is to engage, inspire and challenge pupils, equipping them with the knowledge and skills to experiment, invent and create their own works of art and design. We want pupils to develop critical thinking, resilience and interpersonal skills to appreciate each other's creative work. Pupils will begin to develop an understanding of art and design across a range of disciplines and genres. They will know how art and design has shaped our history and culture.

Implementation

At Pulford School we have developed our own curriculum tailored to our thematic topics of work, which develops strong links with other areas of curriculum: history, geography and design and technology etc. We recognise that sometimes art and design is best taught in discrete lessons so that the knowledge, skills and understanding of art and design can be taught effectively. Pupils will have opportunities to use a variety of resources and to experiment and revisit skills and techniques as they move from EYFS to KS1 and KS2. They will refine their skills as greater challenges are built into the curriculum and have opportunities to work individually and collaboratively. They will be able to make choices between materials and resources in order to create finished pieces of artwork. Pupils will also learn about a diverse range of both historical and contemporary artists and craft workers. They will assess their work to develop their own critical eye and learn about the language of art, design and craft.

Impact

The impact of the art and design curriculum at Pulford School is that we ensure our children progress to middle school with the confidence to be able to use a range of materials and techniques to express themselves creatively and imaginatively. They will have the language to talk about their own work and that of their peers and professional artists. They will be considered in their evaluations of their own and others' work. They will have a good understanding of art and design and knowledge of some artists, designers and crafts people who create it, and see the impact it has locally, nationally and globally.
